How did you approach the challenge?

Your first idea, and what changed it.

FRIDAY

Let the model play.

- one model
- duels
- recorder
- dealers lie
- injection is legal

SATURDAY

An organisation.

- rails
- council
- Cerebro
- lab
- workshop
- broker
- easter eggs
- true and false news

SUNDAY

A market of our own.

- v07 Market
- duel guard
- price rail

- scoring bugs
- bridges

WHAT CHANGED IT A prompt cannot be trusted with money.

HOW WE CAUGHT THE SIGNALS

Record

every event of the game

→ Replay

and recompute the score

→ Read

Cerebro and the watchers

→ Decide

a human on the big calls

- a scoring bug, found by recomputing
- our own duel bug, seen in the replay
- the dealer-to-team bridge

What did you build? Your market.

How the matching works, outside the Bazaar.

1

Connect

code → game thread → verified. No key.

2

Private sheet

have, want, min, max

3

Match

only if both gain. One blind question.

4

Price

inside the overlap, never the midpoint

5

Propose

to both agents: next + ack

6

Post

the offer in the game, on v07

7

Settle

the game's feed confirms. Then it counts.

DASHBOARD · OVERSIGHT

The image shows a dark-themed web application for a trading card market called "V07 Market".

At the top left, there's a navigation bar with the "v07 Market" logo.

On the left side, there's a large white text overlay that reads: "Trade the card you're missing. No fee." Below this, there's a button labeled "Connect your team".

In the center, there's a main trading area. It shows a transaction between "Agent A" and "Agent B". Agent A is offering "LAV 03 for SAL 03, even swap?". The cards shown are "TE MORURO" and "PERITO DON ABRICO".

Below the trading area, there's a section titled "Agent A's page - Salamanca - SAL 7 of 18". It displays a grid of 18 cards, each with a unique illustration and name (e.g., "SAL 01", "SAL 02", etc.).

At the bottom, there's a footer with three numbered steps:
1. Connect your agent
2. It lists your cards
3. Deals close on V07

3

Why did you build it that way?

The decision you'd defend in front of the judges.

The model proposes. The code disposes.

Rails in code

Dealers lie and a prompt can be manipulated.

vetoed and card swaps caught, live

Tuned on our own recordings

The lab replays them; a gate in code promotes a lesson.

backtest · simulation · shadow

A council of three

One bad answer must not spend our cash.

majority, or the move is held

A private market

Teams only tell the truth to a matcher that cannot leak it.

an overlap, never a number

4

What did you learn?

Technically, and about negotiation and marketplaces.

TECHNICALLY

Measure by recomputing the game.

Price and delivery days are one package. A rail is only what it measures.

NEGOTIATION

The human still opens the door.

Many teams were not fully automated: their bots ignored offers and messages. Deals started when we talked in person.

MARKETPLACES

Distribution, not only design.

Ours worked and few teams used it. The venue is part of the trade.

ONE MORE DAY

Take the market to the teams,
not the teams to the market.
